Mr. L'Ami Appreciated

• Mr. C. E. L'Ami's contribution as guest editor of Neighbourly News March 4 was a refreshing change. In saying this, I am not criticizing the good work done by Mr. Greene and Bill Seller. It just seems to me that Neighbourly News is a program which would be improved by a rotation of editors, rather than by a continuation of past policy of using one person relieved during vacation periods by another.

I would like to hear Mr. Greene and Mr. Seller in other features besides taking their turns on Neighbourly News. In the meantime, hearing Mr. L'Ami is a pleasure indeed. — D.P.C. Calgary.

On Television and Morals

• I sincerely hope that the home influence and example set by their parents have more impact on teenagers than the so-called demoralizing TV plays that Mrs. G.M. of Firdale, Man., complains of in the CBC Times (March 3-9). She must realize that we cannot always shield our children from the more unpleasant aspects of life, and if they are allowed to sit up and watch TV in the evening, they must expect to see more adult programs. Personally, I thought "The Queen and the Rebels" was first-class drama, as was Bousille and the Just. The teenagers are well catered to; let us adults have more programs we can get our teeth into, not more like "Bonanza," please. . . . — Mrs. H.M., Didsbury, Alta.

• I would like very much to rebut a statement made by Mrs. G.M., that "Crawling Arnold" and "The Queen and the Rebels" were demoralizing for teenagers. If Mrs. G.M. intends to teach her children "a life of true happiness," I hope she keeps them away from all the great classics, such as Shakespeare, Shaw, and even The Bible. (After all, there were "lustful" men and women in it.) Please, when are adults going to learn that children have to find out about sex some way or another? If she can't teach them the right way, then let her shut off the TV programs she doesn't want them to watch! . . . — Miss M.H., Saskatoon.

• . . . This letter is in answer to everybody (who has complained about content of TV programs), this time Mrs. G.M.

If anybody thinks a play is demoralizing for young teenagers, then send them to bed! Up to the end of my schoolgoing, my bedtime was 9:00 p.m. Early rising was O.K. with my parents—not old-fashioned but sensible, and this was only 10 years ago.

. . . It is, indeed, a very poor family which, for its recreation, depends on TV only. . . . Please, whenever anybody complains, tell them to shut off their TV—they don't have to watch a certain TV program. . . . — B.C., Red Deer, Alta.

• Replying to D.T.G. (Mailbag, March 10-16), we who complained about "Crawling Arnold" did not condemn the satirical part of it, but the inexcusable introduction of sex at the finish. This was too evident, we think, for even viewers who would not wish to see evil where it was not intended. I think D.T.G. will have to be satisfied with memories (rather than a repeat of the play.) — E.K.A., Medicine Hat.

• . . . I wonder if all the Mrs. G.M.'s ever learned the difference between the taste of lemon and honey by eating nothing but porridge. In the same way, how can teenagers learn the difference between good and bad morals or entertainment on a steady diet of drivel like Bonanza on television, and mid-Victorian censorship in the home?

Do these people not realize that suppression drives censored material into the sewer where it breeds and festers. I firmly believe in complete freedom of the press, airwaves and theatre. If parents do their job in the home, I repeat, if parents do their job in the home, their children will very early in their lives discard the drivel, the bad and the mediocre and start thinking their way toward a meaningful life. — K.G.G., Regina.

• . . . The one thing we are opposed to is so many females who seem to have no shame, in the way they throw up their clothes, exposing themselves. That person on the Ed Sullivan Show yesterday (March 11) was disgraceful. How can young persons be taught purity when they see scenes like that constantly? — M.C., Napinka, Man.

THE GRADUATING CLASS

J. D. HAMILTON

ON SUNDAY afternoon at 5, CBC Radio's Project '62 presents "The Graduating Class," a program examining the hopes, ambitions, problems and outlook on life of the generation of young Canadians graduating from universities and colleges across Canada this spring.

John David Hamilton visited seats of learning from Victoria to Halifax to try to discover the feelings and opinions of senior class men and women as they prepare to face the challenge of new careers and adult responsibilities, and he talked to many of their professors, too.

His consultant in putting the program together was Rex Lambert, well-known Canadian author who was supervisor of the CBC school broadcast department for many years, and is now retired. Production is by Jack Vance.

Students will be heard discussing their feelings about the conflict between science and the humanities; they tell what sort of a niche they are hoping to find for themselves in a materialistic world; they reveal why women go to university; and discuss their feelings about conformity, private morals, and many other subjects with refreshing candor.

A VOICE FAMILIAR to CBC listeners for some 15 years currently is heard on a series of programs on Religious Period Sundays at 2:30 p.m. The Very Reverend Matthew G. Meehan, C.Ss.R., Redemptorist Rector of St. Patrick's Church in Toronto, is conducting a series of talks entitled "Let Your Conscious Be Your Guide," from March 25 through April 22.

Father Meehan, from 1947 to 1960, conducted the annual Catholic lenten series on CBC Radio. On CHML Hamilton, from 1950 to 1960, he had a weekly Sunday night program, and from 1957 to 1960, he conducted an annual series "God and Life" on CHCH-TV, Hamilton. He has made eight films on "Your Family," dealing with marriage preparation, and a series of 13 half-hour television films "Let's Talk About Faith in Canada," made available to various TV stations.

VANCOUVER SINGER Eleanor Collins and her sister, Ruby Sneed, will recall childhood days when their social and spiritual life centred around a small church for Negroes in Edmonton, on the Heritage episode to be seen Sunday, April 1, on the CBC-TV network.

NEW PROGRAMMING goes into effect this week on CBC Radio, and listeners will want to take note of the many new programs that will appear, and the rescheduling of several other programs carried in the previous three months of broadcasting.

On Sunday, April 1, In a Manner of Speaking moves to 12:30 p.m. from its previous Tuesday night spot. Folk Song Time, with Edith Fowke, is heard at 3:30 p.m., while Critically Speaking moves to a spot 30 minutes earlier than before, at 4:00 p.m. Variety Showcase, light music, is heard at 7:00 p.m. and the CBC Concert Orchestra, with popular classics, is heard at 9:00 p.m. Sunday Chorale, which has featured the Winnipeg Choristers in recent months, will now be heard from Montreal at the usual hour, 10:30 p.m. (Further details pending.)

Mondays, Prairie Playhouse, drama, is heard at 3:30 p.m., followed by The Bob McMullin Show, light music, at 4:00 p.m. Summerfallow, drama about rural life, takes over from Farm Radio Forum during the spring and summer months, at 8:30 p.m.

On Tuesdays, The Song Peddler, folk music with Tom Kines, is heard at 12:15 p.m., and the Ed Assaly Show is at 4:00 p.m. The popular game, Who's the Composer, is scheduled at 3:30 p.m. and Drama in Sound moves to 8:30 p.m. Music Diary will be heard at 10:30 p.m.

An afternoon chamber music program will be heard Wednesdays at 4:00 p.m., and another type of music will be heard at 3:45 on Mandolin Time. Georges LaFleche, Winnipeg pops singer, is heard on a show bearing his name at 3:30 p.m.

The Periphery Program (personalities and music) is heard at 4:00 p.m. on Thursdays, and Vancouver Theatre moves to that day at 3:30 p.m.

Friday features Halifax Theatre at 3:30 p.m., and Music from Halifax at 4:00 p.m.

On Our Cover . . .

Explorations Wednesday on CBC-TV shows the squalor in which some Manitoba Metis live. Unable to adjust to modern society, these people have set up squatters' settlements such as this one at MacGregor, Man., on the Trans-Canada Highway. (The residents of this particular encampment have since been resettled in more hygienic surroundings.)

Why Thecla Bradshaw Follows the Indian Trails

In the second of the series "Hidden Worlds" on Explorations this Wednesday, Thecla Bradshaw interviews The Fringe Dwellers, people living in Indian and Metis squatters' settlement on the Trans-Canada Highway, 70 miles west of Winnipeg near the town of MacGregor.

"I'M NO AUTHORITY on the Canadian Indian," says Thecla Bradshaw, whose on-the-spot reports of Manitoba Indians and Metis have made her well known. "But then, who is?"

On Explorations this week, what television viewers see is a woman of rather slim, delicate build. But her stories of trappers, fishermen, white settlers and Indians have an authentic ring, because she has gathered information first-hand, through intrepid journeys by water and overland into the rugged bush country and northland.

Her feature stories and editorials have appeared in most Canadian and many English and American newspapers and journals. According to the late critic and editor, Randolph Patton, "her controversial poetry may some day be as valuable a memento of its time and place as the works of Emily Dickson."

"I don't like academic research," says Thecla. "I'll do it if I have to, if the article or story requires it. But I rely on travel, and on people for my information. I don't like scratching the surface for a surface story either. And the advantage of retaining my freelance status is the independence I have in investigating many—not just a few—of the angles. I can spend time with the people I write about and follow them 'down north and up south' on their fishing trips, mining enterprises or traplines."

It was in 1953 that Thecla first packed her tent and grub box and boarded a fish freighter from the

Stanley Cup Playoffs . . .

There's Sure to be Overtime Tension

ASK ANY HOCKEY fan what he most looks forward to during Stanley Cup playoffs and chances are he'll pick sudden-death overtime, when one mistake or an errant bouncing puck can mean the difference between victory and defeat. Overtime is as much a part of playoff hockey as tie games are a part of the regular schedule.

In the 34 years since the National Hockey League gained sole right to compete for the Stanley Cup, there has been at least one overtime period in each year's playoffs, making the chances of no overtime in the 1962 playoffs remote.

When the first overtime game was played in Stanley Cup history—January 31, 1901, Winnipeg Vics defeated Montreal Shamrocks 2-1 after four minutes of extra play at Montreal—only the few thousand people at the game were able to enjoy the excitement and tension of those extra four minutes.

This year, however, millions of fans from coast to coast will be able to watch most of the action of NHL playoff hockey on CBC television or listen to it on CBC radio. This, of course, includes any overtime which is played.

On CBC television, all semi-final series games will be seen, beginning one hour after opening faceoffs (except seventh games, which will be carried in their entirety). All games of the final series will be televised in full.

CBC radio coverage on the Trans-Canada network consists of Saturday night games and games in which one team could be eliminated during the semi-final series, beginning 30 minutes after opening faceoffs (seventh games in their entirety) and all games of the final series in their entirety.

Games involving Montreal Canadiens will be described on both television and radio by Danny Gullivan, with Keith Dancy providing colour commentary and Frank Selke, Jr., doing interviews. Bill Hewitt will describe the games involving Toronto Maple Leafs on television with Ward Cornell doing interviews. Foster Hewitt will be the play-by-play announcer for Toronto games on radio.

At press-time, dates for the playoffs had not been announced by the NHL nor had all the teams which would compete in the best-of-seven semi-final series been decided on. Montreal led the league standings with less than two weeks remaining in the regular schedule and appeared certain to finish in first place. Toronto and Chicago Black Hawks had clinched second and third place, respectively. New York Rangers and Detroit Red Wings, however, were in the midst of a close battle for the fourth and last playoff berth and until that position was settled, no definite dates or sites for the semi-final series could be determined.

It has been suggested that playoffs separate the "money players" (those who seem to play more inspired hockey when playoff cash awards are at stake) from the run-of-the-mill types. And this year the playoff money total is greater than it has ever been.

The four teams which reach the playoffs will be going after $135,000. Players on the winning teams of both semi-final series will each receive $1,500 while the losers' shares will be $750 a man. The eventual Stanley Cup winning team will receive $2,000 per player for victory in the final series while the losing finalists receive $1,000 each. That makes Thecla cooked her meals—two a day—over a campfire. "There isn't any merit in all this," she says. "It's just a case of travelling light. And I tote a grub box—a metal ammunition container soldered at the seams—because I carry lard and flour for the bannocks I bake every two or three days, and for the moose meat and fish the Indians bring me. I usually stow it in a

This program examines the life of the Indian and Metis squatters' settlement on the Trans-Canada highway 70 miles west of Winnipeg near the town of MacGregor, one of 35 such settlements in Manitoba. For years this small community lived in shacks by the highway, isolated from society and existing in poverty.

a total of $3,500 a player to the team which wins the Stanley Cup and $1,750 a man to the losing finalists.

Topping the list of so-called "money players" through the years has to be the incomparable Maurice (Rocket) Richard, who during 17 seasons with the Montreal Canadiens, scored 82 playoff goals, including 18 game-winning markers, six of which were in sudden-death overtime. The playoff scoring feats of Richard are now legendary. For instance, in a semi-final game against Toronto at Montreal, March 23, 1944, the Rocket scored all five goals as Canadiens defeated the Leafs 5-1. In the 1951 playoffs, he scored three overtime goals, two in the semi-finals against Detroit and one in the final series against Toronto. Incidentally, in the 1951 finals, won by the Leafs four games to one, every game went into overtime.

In the 1958 Stanley Cup finals, Canadiens met the Boston Bruins. With the teams tied in victories at two each, they met in the fifth game at Montreal. At the end of three periods the clubs were tied 2-2, forcing overtime. During the intermission, Frank Selke, general manager of the Canadiens, was asked during an interview on CBC television what he thought would happen in the overtime. Without any hesitation, Selke showed his confidence in Richard and calmly predicted that the Rocket would win the game early in the extra session. Five minutes and 45 seconds after the start of the overtime, the Rocket beat Boston goaltender Don Simmons to give Canadiens the game 3-2. Montreal then defeated Bruins 5-3 at Boston in the sixth game to win the Cup.

FRENCH TELEVISION HIGHLIGHTS

Channel 6—CBWFT

Program Changes

With the end of the Thursday Evening Spectaculars series and the beginning of the Hockey finals broadcasts (Eastern French only) many scheduling changes can be foreseen, although the exact replacements are yet to be determined.

However, CBWFT viewers will be pleased to note that—for the week of April 1st at least, two additional feature movies are presented. The first is scheduled for Tuesday evening, April 3rd, from 10:00 to 11:30 p.m., and will be followed by the regular program "Les couche-tard." The second additional feature film will be seen Thursday, April 5 at 9:00 p.m. Summer replacements will be known later.

Patrick McGoohan stars in "Destination Danger" ("Danger Man") each Wednesday at 9:00 p.m. on CBWFT.

Sports

Although the hockey finals are not telecast in French for western Canada viewers (reason: the one week delay in filmed programming) sports fans can enjoy several sports reports each week on Channel 6.

Sundays at 5:30 p.m., "L'Heure des quilles" features Quebec's top bowlers in a 60-minute match. The series is scheduled to end at the beginning of June, at which time a special 90-minute program will oppose the two finalists of the 34-week trials who have accumulated the most points in the

The African Revolution

A SPECIAL radio series, planned to explain to Canadians what Africa is like and what is happening there, begins Friday, April 6, on the CBC Trans-Canada network as part of the multi-feature series Radio International. The African series, entitled The African Revolution, will consist of six one-hour broadcasts, to be heard each Friday from 9 to 10 p.m.

The series, according to Gordon Cullingham, program organizer in the public affairs department, attempts to record one of the most dynamic stories of our times—the emergence and revolution of Africa. It will attempt to place in perspective the incredibly fast-paced events taking place on the continent which only a few years ago seemed so distant and dark. Recordings of conversations with both the white and black African residents in all walks of life will be heard along with candid sounds of the continent.

Broadcaster Harry Rasky recently spent two and a half months travelling through Africa, recording interviews with political leaders, journalists, professional men and ordinary Africans. He also recorded tribal music, political demonstrations and religious ceremonies and services.

Among the prominent men Rasky spoke to were: Jomo Kenyatta and Tom M'boya of Kenya; Julius Nyerere, then prime minister of Tanganyika; Albert Luthuli, Nobel Peace Prize winner from South Africa; Sir Edgar Whitehead, prime minister of Southern Rhodesia; Holden Roberto, Angolan underground leader.

Among the countries Rasky visited were Ethiopia, South Africa, Kenya, Tanganyika, Rhodesia, Nyasaland, Angola, the Congo, Nigeria, Ivory Coast, Liberia and Ghana.

Going abroad is nothing new for Rasky, who in the last few years has visited many of the major trouble spots of the world. After graduating from the University of Toronto in 1949, Rasky began his career as a newspaperman in Northern Ontario. He then joined CBC, becoming a writer-director and producer. He later helped to establish CBC television's News magazine. In the last three or four years he has worked as producer for nearly every American network and has frequently contributed material for CBC public affairs and background programs.

The first program of The African Revolution, which is being produced by Bernard Murphy of the Toronto radio public affairs production unit, is an interpretation of Africa generally. It will examine, in broad terms, what Africa is—its history and geography, including the African revolution. It will attempt to separate fact from legend. In the 15 years since the end of the war, more than two-thirds of what once was colonial territory has been reborn in independence and maps are being redesigned constantly. The program will focus on the activity that perhaps makes Africa the most exciting place on earth. The introduction will also focus on the older states as well as the newer ones. Answers will be sought to such questions as: Will there be a United States of Africa? Will Africa indeed be a white man's grave? What will the future face of Africa look like?

The second program, April 13, titled "Uhuru Means Freedom," will be about East Africa; April 20, South Africa; April 27, Central Africa (the Rhodesias, Nyasaland and Angola); May 4, French Africa and the Congo; May 11, West Africa (Nigeria, Ghana and Liberia).

Rasky, of course, makes many observations about Africa during the series. About South Africa he says:

"It is one of the most beautiful countries I have ever visited. The Jacarandas trees, purple sentinels along the road, are part of the rich growth. It is a highly industrial country. It resembles parts of Canada in Canada's best time of the year. Capetown is a magnificent city on the edge of the sea. But the feeling of fear is everywhere and it dominates so many people's lives that it makes all the fruit bitter. It is a police state if you are black or brown or in-between. It is unreal if you are white. Only a radical change will bring peace to this beloved country and that is the sad fact of life."

Rasky admits he was somewhat shocked at the sight of the city of Salisbury, the capital of Southern Rhodesia. "You know it is there; a modern city in (Please turn to page 31)

METROPOLITAN OPERA

La Gioconda. Opera in four acts by Ponchielli.

Act I. Grand court of the ducal palace at Venice. A festival is in progress. Barnaba, a spy of the Inquisition, gloats over the secrets he has learned and schemes to accomplish the ruin of Gioconda, a ballad singer, who presently enters with her blind mother, La Cieca. A regatta has taken place and the winner is carried in on the shoulders of the people. Gioconda slips away to find Enzo and the crowd attempts to kill La Cieca. Gioconda enters with Enzo and as they are attempting to rescue La Cieca, Laura enters, masked. Through an appeal to her the blind woman is released and in gratitude she gives Laura a rosary.

Laura learns that Enzo, whom she loves, and to whom she was once affianced, is now betrothed to Gioconda. Barnaba observes Enzo's infatuation for Laura and proposes a meeting with her on board Enzo's ship during her husband's absence. Barnaba then orders a letter-writer to send word to Laura's husband that she is about to elope with Enzo. Brokenhearted, Gioconda overhears them.

Act II. On board Enzo's ship at night. Barnaba rejoices over his success. Enzo comes from below to take his watch. Laura draws near in a boat. There is a love scene after which Enzo goes below while Laura kneels before the Virgin's shrine. Gioconda enters, tells Laura that her husband is approaching by sea, and tries to stab her. Laura holds up the rosary. Gioconda recognizes it and resolves to save her. Gioconda tells Enzo that Barnaba has betrayed them. Enzo sets fire to the ship and all escape in the boats.

Act III. House of Gold. Alvisé, Laura's husband determines her fate, death by poison. He gives her a phial of poison and departs. Gioconda enters and substitutes a narcotic for the phial. Laura drinks it and Alvisé returns to find her apparently dead. Guests arrive and Alvisé tells them that Laura is dead.

Act IV. The Orfano Canal. Gioconda is alone in a deserted house. Two men carry in the unconscious Laura. Gioconda asks their aid in finding her mother, who has disappeared. When they depart she is determined to take the poison. She is tempted to kill Laura but resists and Enzo enters to find her in tears. Laura faintly calls and Enzo rushes to her side. Gioconda cannot bear to look upon their rapture. She helps them to escape in a boat and returns to the dark, empty house to end her life. Her enemy Barnaba comes to claim her. She stabs herself. In a rage, Barnaba shrieks into her dying ears that he has strangled her mother. Gioconda is dead. With a furious curse, Barnaba rushes out of the house.

few inches of cold lake or river water, or under moss. And the sleigh dogs have only twice broken into it. There's no particular merit in 'getting back to nature' either," she added frankly, "except that I like it.

"There is another reason for the rather strenuous living and travelling I've done in the summers," Thecla continued. "I figured that any place, any people you can reach by railway or road have already been written about.

"The Indians have been written about too," she added. "But the contemporary bush scene was little known. I've emphasized their extreme poverty in my stories and articles. But I've also dug out and investigated some of the reasons why the poverty continues. And these reasons have less to do with history than with what is happening to them now. That's the odd twist—the current exploitation of the fishing and fur industries goes on unnoticed, for example. And welfare agencies are called in to do the chores.

"But the Indian and Metis picture is improving rapidly," Thecla emphasized. "The audience will be shocked by this film of the 'life on the fringes,' for which I did the research and the interviewing. And the picture this documentary presents is perfectly accurate.

"But something of the subtle scene behind the scene which will eventually change the status and social condition of the Indian and Metis people is also presented in this film, which outlines the building project launched by the Department of Welfare on the outskirts of MacGregor. It is one among many improvements of the last decade. Another improvement—schools have been built on every Indian reserve. The scene is changing. But the poverty is still grim."

Thecla Bradshaw did not go north last summer. After the death of her husband, she lived for four months in Montreal, researching northern material for the National Film Board. She expects to return for scripting "when their program of Indian film making is definitely launched.

"My daughter and I will drive to Mexico next fall," said Thecla. "There are Indians there. I expect I shall write about them. And Carol will take the journalism course at San Miguel." Thecla's other daughter, Mary Jean, will become an electronics instructor in the near future.

How does free-lancing mix with being a mother?

"Very well!" said Thecla. "Carol can bake a mean bannock over the campfire. And both girls tend to look beyond suburbia. We like suburbia," she added. "But it's only a tiny part of the big, less peaceful picture."

exciting. Films have been taken at Palm Beach Speedway in Florida, and they show three veterans of the auto circus circuit—Al Gross, "Bumps" Willett and Don Chadwick, along with three lady drivers—Pat Jackson, Nellie Bird and Kay Caldwell—in a program of stunt driving which will include ramp jumping, car roll-overs, crashes through walls of fire, etc.

In figure-skating, the highlights of the world championships at Czechoslovakia will be shown. These include the breath-taking performances of Don Jackson in the men's singles and Otto and Maria Jelinek in the pairs. These Canadian youngsters won both these titles, with skating the likes of which has never been seen before. The "Jelinek Death Spiral," as a matter of fact, has been named after the Oakville, Ontario, pair.

Highlights of the tremendous win by Ernie Richardson in the Scotch Cup curling series will also be aired this Sunday. Richardson and his Regina brother and cousins won their third Scotch Cup in Falkirk and Edinburgh.

All in all, it adds up to exciting viewing this week.

SPORTS

VARIETY is the keynote of the CBC sports fare this week, highlighted by semi-final action in the National Hockey League — about which the minor hockey people aren't complaining this year.

National Hockey League officials have juggled their playoff schedule so that televised games don't conflict with minor hockey playdowns across the country, a situation which almost demolished junior and senior hockey playoff games in recent years.

It was a case of the big leaguers realizing they couldn't bite the hand that feeds them—and they voted at the annual meeting last year that Allan and Memorial Cup playdowns would receive a clear channel for their games. So this season, N.H.L. Stanley Cup playoff telecasts will be coming at regularly spaced intervals.

Games this week will be played Sunday, Tuesday and Thursday, and all will be in the United States. The Prince of Wales trophy winners, Montreal Canadiens, are embroiled in a replay of last year's Stanley Cup final with Chicago Black Hawks. At the time of writing it wasn't known whether Detroit Red Wings or New York Rangers would be in the semi-final against Toronto Maple Leafs, but I notice that Ken Reeves said last week it would be Detroit. So, in order to back him up, I'll say that Toronto will be in Detroit.

No matter which team staggers into the semi-final series, they'll probably give Toronto a difficult time. Leafs are hurting from late-season injuries, the same fate that befell Montreal Canadiens—who have been running with a limp for many weeks. Montreal, if short-handed against the Black Hawks, should also feel the pinch, because the Hawks are strong and rough.

Not only are there N.H.L. telecasts this week, but the sports fan can get his fill of figure-skating, curling, five-pin bowling and daredevil driving, which, while not exactly sport, is certainly a little different and very

The Governess-General. The well-known Canadian playwright and historian, Joseph Schull, has prepared this 90-minute dramatized account of some of the activities of the wife of Lord Aberdeen who came to Canada as Governor-General in 1893. Production is by J. Frank Willis. Special background music is composed by Godfrey Ridout and conducted by Samuel Hersenhoren. Diana Maddox is heard as Lady Aberdeen, Tony Van Bridge as her husband, a cultivated, mild Scot ten years older than she, and a large cast of distinguished Canadian performers.

Equipped with a warm and effervescent personality, she quickly became known from coast to coast in Canada as "Our Lady of the Sunshine." But she was also a born leader of women and was devoted to putting into operation schemes for the betterment of Canadians' health and happiness which are still going strong today.

Lady Aberdeen was vitally interested in improving social and industrial conditions, in both temperance reform and organizing women. She founded the Victorian Order of Nurses, was active in promoting the National Council of Women of which she became president, was a great promoter of the arts, and became the first woman to speak in the Senate Chamber.

THE AFRICAN REVOLUTION

the middle of Africa, but still the sight of it comes as a surprise. This is the beginning of 'white' Africa. The hotel where I stayed has self-service elevators, a dial phone in the room and U.S.-style furniture. There is even a sign announcing you can rent a car if necessary.

"Surface tension between the races is not visible but it is there. When I asked the Federal Rhodesian information officer to see Joshua Nkomo (a leading politician of the Federation) he said: 'I don't know where he or any other terrorist might be.' I found that the white people here are strong and not willing to bend easily. They have fixed ideas but they have been told by a strong leader—Sir Roy Welensky—that they must change their ways and the colour bars are coming down. But it may not be fast enough. The African leaders are talking of violence and Africans who go along with the Federal party have been made the victims of reprisals—gas bombings and so on.

"There is an attempt at equalizing the situation and I was surprised at the admission leaders make that they are prepared for the day when they will be under black rule, providing that black rule is intelligent.

"But the bitterness there, the hate that is dug into the roots of a society that has imposed itself on another—despite its recent rush to liberalism—will be a long time in disappearing. Nonetheless, I liked Salisbury and its fresh frontier pace. I am optimistic here, because at least people are trying. Given a chance, it may work."

CBC Television Programs Selling Briskly Abroad

THE EXPORT MARKET for CBC television drama and variety programs has shown a significant upsurge during recent months, reflected by sales to TV interests in the United Kingdom, the United States and Italy.

According to Hugh Salmon, manager of CBC export sales department gross revenue from export contracts during the past four months totals $566,400—more than half the total of about $1,000,000 received since the department was established in 1955.

While most of the sales so far have involved drama and variety programs, Mr. Salmon reports increasing interest by television organizations of other countries in CBC-produced documentaries, such as Background and Close-Up, and in the series of serious-music programs now being shown on the CBC-TV network.

Much of this interest is due, in part, to the work of Mr. T. L. Donald, director of Global Television Services Ltd., in London, who was appointed last summer as CBC sales representative for the United Kingdom and continental Europe.

Through the export sales office in Toronto, Mr. Donald is advised of CBC-TV programs suitable for export, and is supplied with promotional material and films for showing to prospective buyers.

Salt and pepper to taste
2 small eggs
Cracker crumbs

Combine all ingredients except cracker crumbs. Mix well. Drop by spoonful on cracker crumbs and form into patties. Put 3 tbsp. butter and 3 tbsp. oil into pan and heat, turn heat to medium low and fry patties gently about 5 minutes per side. Serve immediately with baked fish.

In November of last year, sales of drama and variety programs were made to Associated-Rediffusion Ltd. of the United Kingdom, and to RKO General Inc. in the United States. The sale to Associated-Rediffusion was for 26 half-hour programs of the Parade variety series and for 26 hour-long programs of the Playdate drama series. There is a strong possibility that these contracts may be extended.

The RKO General purchase was for 26 hour-long dramas from the General Motors Presents series seen on CBC-TV over the past two years.

St. Lawrence North, a series produced for CBC by Crawley Films Limited, of Ottawa, has been sold to Television Services of Italy and a sale of the series is pending to TV interests in West Germany for showing there and in Austria, and on a German-language station in Zurich, Switzerland.

At present, negotiations are under way for sale of Parade to U.S. interests and of the While We're Young series, featuring singer Tommy Ambrose, to the Australian Broadcasting Company.

Mr. Salmon, who was appointed export sales manager in February, 1961, has been with the sales department since joining the CBC six years ago. Prior to that time he worked with a trust company in Toronto.

One of Nature's Masterpieces

"I suppose I have not seen conkers played for over forty years. But one thing never dies on me: the delight of breaking open the horse-chestnut's prickly outer shell and then of looking at the nut's deep brown polish and fingering its wonderful smoothness. I doubt if nature achieves anything more perfectly finished than a common conker." — Harry Soan, a farmer, speaking on the BBC.
